Come Some Rainy Day

Come Some Rainy Day

>  We move on
 Put those dreams away
> Thinking that we'll find them
 Come some rainy day **

I sit and stare at your picture.

Do you ever miss me? Do you even remember me? I wish I knew even that much.

You never call me. Do you know how much a call from you - from any of the ex-Animorphs - would matter to me? I miss you all - do any of you miss me?

None of you ever write. I feel isolated, even with my new life and my huge apartment. I feel isolated, even though I have new friends.

But I could never replace you, even if one day I could move past them.

First time I saw you
> I knew I would love you
 Half way through sophomore year
> I finally asked your name
 When I kissed you
> I lost my heart completely
 All we wanted
> Was just to stay that way

Every time the phone rings, my heart leaps to my throat. I wonder if possibly, when I pick it up, I will hear your voice on the other end of the line.

I remember every detail of our relationship. Have you forgotten it? Have you tried to put it behind you?

I did try, make no mistake. I tried to completely erase your memory, but I failed.

I see your face in my memory and in the picture I hold before me. It still hurts, the fact that we went our separate ways.

Does it hurt you?

When I wanted to forget you, I even tried to replace you. But no one could ever take your place. I've learned this lesson, finally, but it has taken a long, long time.

We move on
> Put those dreams away
 Hoping that we'll find them
> Come some rainy day
 How could I know
> That everything would change
 Except the way I miss you
> Come some rainy day

The rain patters on my windowsill. The dark, fog-covered streets below me have almost no people treading them, but the cars' horns are still honking. For some absurd reason, I look down to see what is happening.

There is a somewhat gruesome wreck below. Ambulances are just arriving, and a limp form is being dragged out of a car that looks almost like yours.

I strain to make out the face, but it is too far away. And it couldn't be you.

Could it?

I'll sit and laugh with friends
>At what we've all been through
 But I still catch my breath
> When someone mentions you

The next day, there is a call. As always, my heart leaps to my throat.

When I pick up, I hear a strange voice that I don't recognize.

And slowly, it shatters my world.

"...just came to see you," I hear when I finally recollect my thoughts. I manage to stutter out a reply, but never can remember exactly what I said.

We hang up.

We move on
> Put those dreams away

I pick up the picture now, tears sliding down my cheeks.

Perhaps...just perhaps...you did care.

But now you are gone.

I look outside my window again. The site of the wreck is completely cleared now. There is no evidence of it.

Rain still pours, making it almost impossible to see anything.

The only thing that pounds harder than the rain is my tears.

Baby I still miss you
> Come some rainy day

>I omitted the first verse because - didn't fit with the songfic, if any of you actually know this song and are wondering (I doubt it, but anyway...). Reviews are welcome (what else is new?). Thanks for reading!
